STRUNA:

Croatian National Termbase

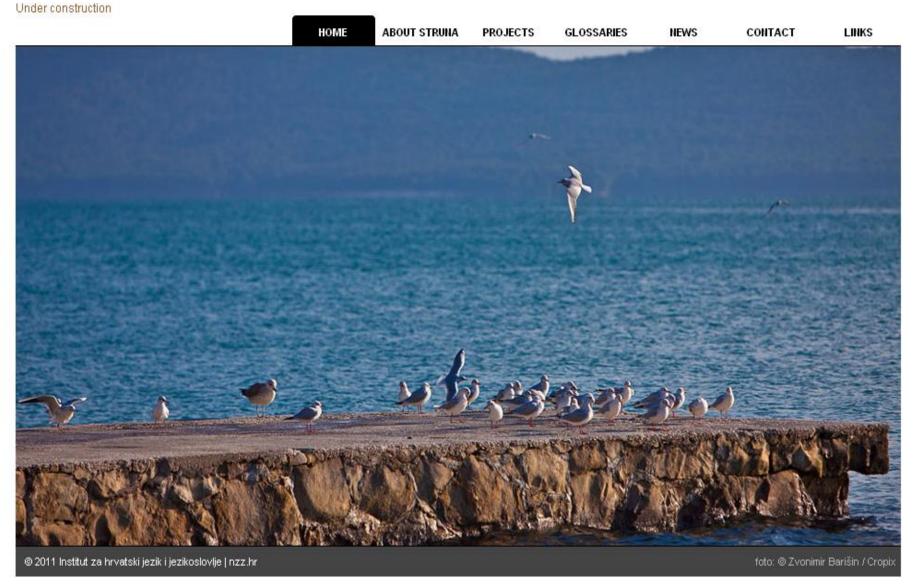

Institute of Croatian Language and Linguistics

- What is Struna?
 - Development of Croatian Special Field Terminology (STRUNA)
 - financed by the Croatian Science Foundation
 - carried out at the Institute of Croatian Language and Linguistics

- Aim of the Struna program
- Approach to terminology work

Struna

http://struna.ihjj.hr/

e-Struna

- e-Struna is a normativ term base
- initially envisaged as a monolingual terminology resource aimed at Croatian LSP terminology standardization

- multilingual for obvious reasons:
 - foreign language equivalents
 - prerequisite of data sharing and term base exchange
 - translators as term base users

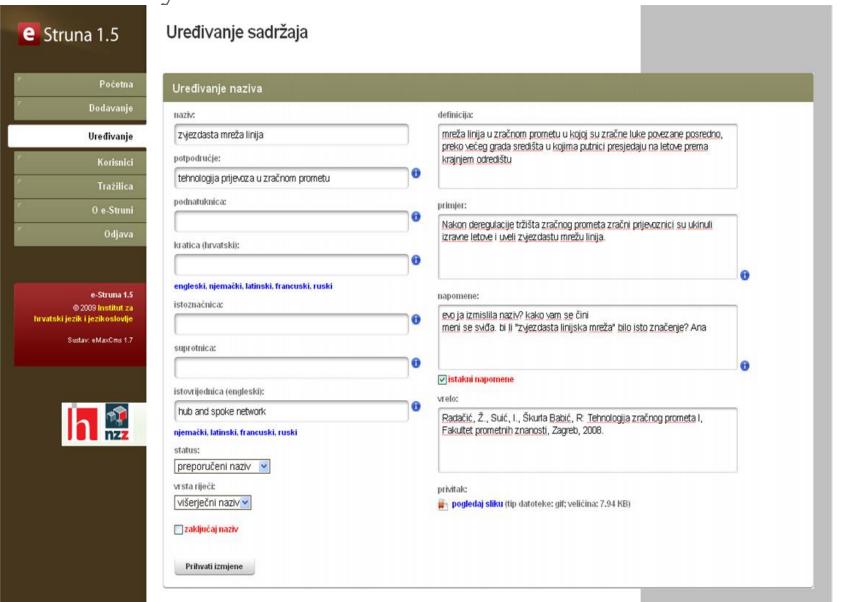

Users

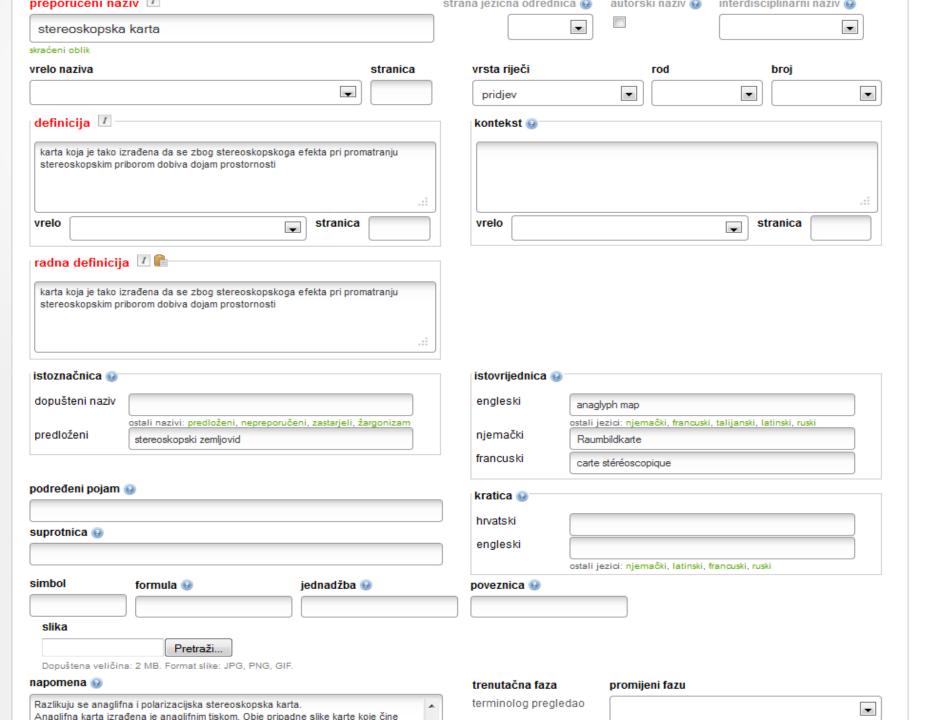

- e-Struna does not imply a specific category of users
- the term base is intended to be as user friendly as possible both on
 - terminologists' (compilers') side
 - final users' side (search engine)
- "a term bank should ideally be designed to be as easy to use as Google, and to appear to the average user to be an online dictionary, rather than a term base" (H. Nilsson)

Under construction

The first version of e-Struna – simulating the dictionary format

Towards e-Struna for everyone

• by establishing standardized subject field terminology Struna aims at improving knowledge and information circulation

• important for the status of Croatian as a standard language (soon to become an EU language)

• e-Struna will open for public at the end of 2011
